Course Description:

This course is designed to improve critical thinking skills of students by reading for comprehension of increasingly relatively challenging texts. This course will offer an opportunity to students to improve their understanding of the relationship between English vocabulary, structure, and meaning. In their reading of texts, students will increase their critical thinking skills and improve their general reading habits and skills in English.

Course Objectives & Learning Outcomes:

The main objective of this course is to develop and strengthen students' required reading skills, prepare them for effective reading by grasping the obvious and more difficult meanings of a given text and improve their thinking skills by completing various prescribed activities.

The main learning outcomes for students enrolled in the course can be summarized in the following:

This course focuses on honing students' reading skills by emphasizing the ability to define new vocabulary encountered in reading passages and suggesting appropriate titles based on comprehension. Students will learn to extract main ideas effectively, recall the meanings of collocations, and demonstrate competence in guessing unknown words through context. The course also encourages the practice of various reading strategies and the identification of main ideas in passages. Effective use of dictionaries for information retrieval is emphasized, fostering both individual and collaborative learning. Additionally, the course aims to develop teamwork and peer support through reading exercises, promoting the exchange of opinions and views for continuous self-learning improvement.
